Emergency Preparedness

Be Informed: Family

Knowledge is power. When it comes to emergency preparedness and disasters, families will be better off if they've done their homework. Some things to learn are the hazards in the area and the protective actions for those hazards, how people will be notified in a disaster, and what other resources may be available in a disaster response.

Learn more about emergency preparedness by watching the YouTube Be Ready Utah training videos.

Do This

1. Identify the predominant hazards where you live.
2. Learn, practice, and teach the protective actions to survive those hazards.
3. Identify and register for, or opt in to, the warning systems used in your area.
4. Sign up for information by texting UtahQuake to 43362.
